The Early Years

Sarah was born into a Christian family and homeschooled from a young age. Her parents believed that homeschooling was the best way to provide her with a Christ-centered education, and they wanted to instill in her a love of learning.

Sarah thrived in her homeschool environment. She was a bright and curious child, and she loved to learn new things. She excelled in her studies, and she developed a strong foundation in math, science, history, and literature.

The Call to Ministry

As Sarah grew older, she began to feel a call to ministry. She loved to teach and share her faith with others, and she knew that God was calling her to use her gifts in service to Him.

Sarah's parents were supportive of her decision to pursue a career in ministry, and they encouraged her to apply to church college. Church college is a type of higher education institution that offers a Christian-based education. Students at church colleges can earn degrees in a variety of disciplines, including theology, Bible, and Christian education.

The College Search

Sarah visited several different church colleges before deciding on a school. She wanted to find a school that would provide her with a strong academic education and that would also support her in her spiritual growth.

Sarah ultimately decided to attend a small, private church college in the Midwest. The school was a good fit for her because it offered a strong academic program and a supportive Christian community.

The College Experience

Sarah's college experience was everything she had hoped for and more. She loved her classes, and she made many new friends. She also grew in her faith, and she developed a closer relationship with God.

Sarah graduated from college in 2018 with a degree in Christian education. She is now serving as a youth pastor at a church in her hometown. She is passionate about her work, and she is committed to making a difference in the lives of her students.

Sarah's journey from home school to church college is a testament to the power of faith and education. She is a bright, talented, and compassionate young woman who is making a difference in the world. She is a shining example of how God can use ordinary people to do extraordinary things.
